

28 JUN 2011

10:00 am

Christopher Wink

News

LEED sustainable

View comments

Mia Levesque

Tracy Levesque

Yikes Inc.

Fishtown - Philadelphia

Recommend 12

Tweet 6

Yikes Inc. to open its new LEED-certified Fishtown offices Aug. 1, seeks tenant

Before, during and after photos of the front of the Girard Avenue LEED-certified building of Yikes Inc.

Come Aug. 1, the co-founders of web development firm Yikes Inc. will unveil their biggest yet, and it doesn't have anything to do with a website.

Tracy and Mia Levesque, who started doing pro bono web work in 1994, are close to seeing the completion of the complete LEED-certified, rehabilitation of 204-206 East Girard Avenue in Fishtown.

Currently, Yikes is seeking a company to lease 206 Girard, next to 204, which will be the web shop's headquarters.

"The majority of building materials will be reclaimed or recycled including 90 percent reclaimed interior doors, 100 percent reclaimed flooring materials, 90 percent reclaimed framing materials and 100 percent recycled drywall. Waste removal is considered an important part of the strategy, so the majority of all construction waste is being recycled or repurposed," according to a press release.

Comments:

Add a comment...

Posting as Jodie E. Saueraker (Change)

Comment

Post to Facebook

Facebook social plugin

SEARCH

newworks
Powered by WHY
and You

REED TECHNOLOGY
WEB ARCHIVING SERVICES
COMPREHENSIVE WEB ARCHIVING
FOR CORPORATE, GOVERNMENT
& PROFESSIONAL SERVICES
www.ReedTechWebArchiving.com

Subscribe

Technically Philly on Facebook

Like You like this.

1,029 people like Technically Philly.

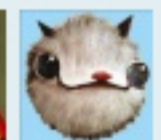

Laura

Melitta

Deborah

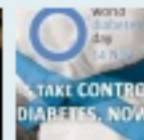

Yis

DI

Jennifer

Karl

Josh

Antwan

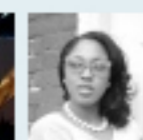

Gina

Sandy

Frankford A

Facebook social plugin